1. RADIO DAYS / Pay no attention to its midcentury walnut exterior—the Tivoli NetWorks radio is a modern marvel. By wirelessly connecting to the internet, it streams online radio or plays the music stored on your hard drive. For old-timers, it comes with FM, too. / $650 / tivoliaudio.com

2. THESE BUDS ARE FOR YOU / Blocking noise is always a good thing; looking like an air-traffic controller isn't. Ultimate Ears' SuperFi 5vi noise isolating buds deliver hi-def sound with the same technology the company uses in its professional monitors, only in a smaller package. / $190 / ultimateears.com

3. NUMBER THEORY / For those who start to twitch if they go too long without a sudoku fix, the Puzzle Society offers its Pocket Posh Sudoku series. There are 100 puzzles packed inside of this pretty package. / $8 / upuzzles.com

4. TALK TO ME / The best thing about Moshi's IVR alarm clock is not that it responds to voice commands or that you can turn off its alarm just by asking. It's that when you wake up on the wrong side of the bed and yell at the little guy, its feelings won't be hurt. / $50 / moshilifestyle.com

5. TIME CAPSULES / Zipping through time zones is always rough on your body, but the makers of FlyRight, a jet lag formula made with "wild-harvested herbs," claim to have come up with a solution. Then again, jet lag's part of the fun, right? / $20 / jetlagformula.com
